It's one thing being able to write. It's another being able to penetrate complex issues and produce cogent, accurate copy.

Our ideal candidate has a health or science background, a disciplined, analytical mind, the ability to transfer research and findings into well-constructed, readable material for journalists - including health writers and the consumer media - and a knack for pitching stories to journalists. Plus we want energy, zeal and commitment and an ability to rub along with people no matter what the pressure and a robust commitment to new business work.

We build credible profiles in health and the environment and are fluent in the finance, politics and business of these worlds. We are looking for like-minded people.

Competitive packages paid. Come and work with the best!
